The bar chart illustrates the number of incidents and injures happening for every 100 million passenger miles on five different types of transportation in 2002. In general, it can be seen that the most incidents and injures occurred on demand response transport services, while the figure for commuter rail serves recorded by far the lowest figures. It is also noticeable that rail transportation experienced fewer problems, while the figure for incidents of light rail services equaled that for bus services.

Looking at the incidents and injures of two main transportation, demand response services saw a biggest incidents and injures, with 225 and 173 cases respectively. In addition, the second dangerous transportation was bus. there were 76 incidents and 66 people injured on bus.

With regard to the rail transportation, commuter rail experienced the fewest incidents and injures than the other two transportations, at only 20 and 17 accordingly. The figure for the incidents of light rail services double that for commuter rail. Additionally, the figure for injures of light rail were nearly two times as many as those for commuter rail.

SAMPLE WRITING TASK 2

In many countries, particularly places like Asia, skin whitening products are incredibly popular and provide huge profits for the companies involved in their sale. This essay will examine the reasons why people use these products and the effects this has on people's health and on society.

The principal reason that people use skin whitening products is because whiter skin is seen to be more desirable than darker skin. To understand why, we need to firstly look at history. In ancient times, those people of a higher status tended to stay indoors, whilst people of a lower status worked outside, usually farming. As a result, those people who were indoors had much lighter skin, which means that whiter skin is now associated with having a higher status than dark skin. Another reason, which is partly related to this, is the desire for the 'Western' look. For example, plastic surgery to create western eyelids and noses is common in Asia, and the white skin is part of this. These beliefs and images are also perpetuated in the media, with adverts showing people with white skin as more successful and attractive.

However, despite the fact that having whiter skin may improve a person's self-esteem, these products can have negative effects. Regarding health, there are reports that people are harming their skin permanently as some products bought over the counter have prescription-strength ingredients. For instance, some contain steroids or toxins which can severely damage the skin and other parts of the body. In terms of society, there are also detrimental effects. Such behaviour perpetuates the belief that 'white' is better than 'black', and thus those with darker skin may experience discrimination.

In conclusion, people use whitening products due to the fact that white skin, usually through the media, is portrayed as more desirable. However, steps should be taken to change this image as the drawbacks of this are clear, with potentially dangerous consequences for people's future health and society as a whole.
